

Peter Clough is a Consultant with Cobden Research Ltd advising companies and other organisations in the food, pharma and nutritional supplements industries. He is involved in new product development, supervising contract research activities, and supplying test materials to independent research programmes.